Fabulously camp and deliciously funny, Australia's First International Drag show is back, after sold out seasons in New York and Edinburgh, with another gloriously twisted and glamorous satire on the movies.

Glamorous, funny and irreverent with buckets of pop and handfuls of delicious corn, seasoned with intelligence and silliness in equal parts. These 20th Century foxes with a difference will make your day.

Drags Aloud dazzled audiences with their unique parody of Sound of Music in 2007, earning Five Star reviews and international acclaim at Edinburgh Fringe Festival. Next they demolished Sandy and Danny with their Grease Lightnin' Drag Show, and now they're back with another jab at Hollywood's sacred cows and celebrity.

The new show arrives in 2010. Don't miss it.

" They're wonderful, they're entertaining, they're terrific.
A great, great act " - Joan Rivers
